

THE STARS

By LYN CONNELLY

ONE OF THE MOST OFTEN QUOTED comments in music business is the statement by Tony Martin that, "It takes more than a good voice to make a star."

ing of the Night Club Singers," racking up record grosses wherever he appears.

Tony is an accomplished actor (it says here in fine print) and recordwise he was last year's retail record dealer's choice as the nation's number one seller. His radio show for NBC has a top bracket Nielsen rating. Even on records, Tony is constantly trying innovations. He was the first major male recording artist to make duets with girl singers (this is highly debatable, but we'll let it pass since there is no record file on hand at the moment).

In the current crop of boy-girl duets his latest with Dinah Shore, "A Penny's Worth," is far and away the best. Tony's "I Said My Pajamas" was the top song in the country last year at this time and also employed the duet technique. All this goes to prove Tony's contention that it takes "more than a good voice to make a star." All this was dreamed up by a typical enterprising press agent looking for a new "angle" for his client. There are just a few questions we'd like to submit to this press agent regarding the above: Just where would Tony be in the movie, radio and recording fields without a voice? Did he have to pass a dramatic audition before he got his radio spot? And doesn't any vocalist attain showmanship with experience?

In contrast we give you CBS's Perry Como, who has starred brightly on radio and television for some years and also made a few pictures of note. He's handsome, has personality.

"I REMEMBER"

BY THE EDITORS

From Mrs. W. C. Blaine, Taconic, Ill.: I remember when the apple "bush" grew in the garden and I would dig up the apples and eat them and the family would say, "Don't eat those apples, they're bad!"

From Mrs. Bessie K. Hubbell, Ada, Ohio: I remember when I was a child and I would dig up the apples and eat them and the family would say, "Don't eat those apples, they're bad!"

From Mrs. M. E. Stanley, Millon, N. Y.: I remember when I was a child and I would dig up the apples and eat them and the family would say, "Don't eat those apples, they're bad!"

From Mrs. T. A. Read, Ukiah, Calif.: I remember when my niece came on Sunday afternoon with her freshly washed tummy and high spirited horse and took me for a ride. It was the custom for everybody to go to church in the evening. When service was over, the young men would file out and line up on each side of the steps. As the young ladies came out, each young man would advance to the lady fair and say, "May I see you home?" How very formal we were in those days!

From A. R. Reid, Union Spring, Ala.: I remember as a boy to the pioneer town of Alva, where a man peddled water from house to house.

From Mrs. Jessie Butera, Pittsford, Pa.: I remember when one of my boys used the first washing machine out. It was operated by arm power. Every time she had to wash clothes, she had to turn the wheel by hand.

From Mary D. Garbarini, Cortland, N. Y.: I remember when blacksmiths did a flourishing business. We had three in our little town. On stormy days, for that was when the farmers came to town, you could hear the clanging of the hammers until late in the evening.

From Mrs. Mary Stewart, Chicago: I remember when I was a child and I would dig up the apples and eat them and the family would say, "Don't eat those apples, they're bad!"

LOW DOWN FROM HICKORY GROVE

Quite a few States are coming out of their lethargy as concerns where do we get off it we do not soon, up and lower the boom, on the giant vehicles 2 and 3 sections long, that are pounding our roads to dust. "Lethargy," my word, says Henry. Sure, I say—but quiet and if you have no dictionary, I will loan you mine.

I will proceed. I been reading where California has just discovered that its big trucks hit it up to 70 and that they out-run by 15 minutes the fastest R. R. streamliner between San Francisco and Los Angeles 445 miles. The State has just "discovered" this flagrant speed.

I deduct as follows, to wit, via 3 answers. One. Let every citizen sell his dimes—say how? The Ball passenger-car-size gopher holes every half mile, so when a 70 mile an hour double-jointed, mile-high truck haves into view Mr. and Mrs. Ordinary Citizen could dive for safety. Three. And, no joke, require that the heavy freight people provide their own road-bed—join in with railroads, buy half the R. R. right-of-way and pave such if they choose or get themselves their own private and independent roadway.

And in conclusion after we get our pavements to a get a half a mile wide where any one can get a builder who builds a car that will go faster than 70 miles per hour would be hanged at daybreak, or even sooner.

CIVIL DEFENSE

Standard Training Is Needed
By Civil Defense Volunteers

By Walter A. Shead

(This is the fourth in a series of five articles on the civilian defense program.)

AUTHORITY in the line of command for the tremendous civil defense army needed in case of full scale war stems from the President, through Civil Defense Administrator Millard Caldwell, to the 48 state civil defense directors and down the line to the appointed officers in cities, towns and counties throughout the nation.

National defense against atomic, biological and chemical warfare rests upon thorough training to start in a civil defense unit college to be established for top civil defense planners and administrators. The college will serve as a source of all latest information. Regional technical training centers are also planned where this information will be disseminated in the civil defense training programs in the states and local communities. The technical centers will be staffed by thoroughly trained men and women in all phases of the work and will provide means for standardization of the technical and special training necessary. Standardization is a prime factor for successful mutual aid and mobile support which require a force of uniformly trained civil defense workers.

Graduates of the federal technical training centers will train other civil defense workers and trainers within the states, who, in turn, will train the local volunteers. Under the program, two kinds of training will be provided—general and specialized. General training will consist of instruction in basic subjects to include fundamental principles of organization and operation, first aid and emergency rescue operations. The American Red Cross, officials of the public health service and other organizations concerned with health services will conduct certain phases of specialized training such as first aid and rescue and teaching. Many medical officers of the military service, public health service, the veterans administration and other organizations have taken specialized courses in defense against atomic warfare and these will be asked to assist in the training program.

Already in the atomic warfare field 44 physicians from 35 states have taken courses given by the state health departments in cooperation with the federal government. In the field of first aid, 10,000 people have been trained in first aid courses given by the state health departments in cooperation with the federal government. In the field of first aid, 10,000 people have been trained in first aid courses given by the state health departments in cooperation with the federal government.

logical monitoring which included many aspects of the civil defense program. Similar training courses will be available for biological warfare against humans and animals, against chemical warfare and against biological warfare against crops. Courses in these subjects will have three prime aspects—detection, treatment of casualties, and methods of decontamination. Training will be available for nurses aids and home nurses, radiological monitors, auxiliary sanitary personnel and auxiliary laboratory workers.

For large segments of the general public, the major type of training will be in the category of first aid—what to do first in any of the fields of civil defense. The goal is 20,000,000 trained first-aiders in a 22-hour course which will also include training in special weapons defense and in procedures for treating various illnesses in time of emergency when physicians will be overburdened with casualties.

Every state will operate under a uniform system of organization, equipment and procedure. Establishment of control stations in strategic areas, of first aid stations and the implementation of all necessary ambulances, hospitalization, fire fighting equipment and a score of other defense matters will be taught. It is estimated that approximately 35 per cent of surviving casualties in an atomic bomb burst would require transportation by litter to first-aid stations, hence the importance of first aid work. As an example, if there were 40,000 injured survivors, about 12,000 probably would have to be carried by litter. Another 27,000 could walk, or would be taken to first aid stations by other means. So the most important function is in first aid training, since even first aiders require leave, police, engineering and other personnel, first to contact the injured, would be called upon for first aid to casualties.

As every individual should watch for announcement of establishment of regional training centers.
